JOSHUA XXIV. 13, 14.

I have given you a Land for which ye did not labour, and Cities which ye built not, and ye dwell in them : Of the Vineyards and Oliveyards, which ye planted not, do ye eat.

Now therefore, fear the Lord, and serve Him, in Sincerity, and in Truth.

THESE Words are Part of the last Speech of Joshua to the People of Israel, after they had acquired full Possession of the Promised Land, and when the Life of their great Leader was just drawing to its Period. Long Experience had convinced him of the Necessity of repeated Exhortations to that stubborn Race of Men, who had so frequently failed in their Obedience, and sometimes fallen even into Idolatry itself, although so many Miracles had been wrought in their Favour, and for their Conviction, the Hand of God Himself being visible in every Article of their Success. That they should fear the Lord, paying strict Obedience to all His Laws; and that they should serve Him in Sincerity, and in Truth; in Sincerity, by worshipping Him without any Mixture of Idolatry, or any Regard to the false Gods of the Nations; and in Truth, by their Attention to that Declaration; "Hear, O Israel, the Lord our God is one Lord;" is what Joshua presses upon them, from the Consideration of God's Power and Goodness; of His Power to drive out the Nations from before them; and of His Goodness, in giving them "that good Land to possess it; a Land, for which they did not labour; Cities, which they did not build; Vineyards and Olive-yards, which they did not plant."

to

AND surely, the Power of God to bless any People, and His Goodness in exerting that Power, are universally good Motives, and ought always to engage Men to fear Him and to serve Him, whether their case be or be not exactly similar to that of the Israelites.

HOWEVER, in the present Case, it may be asked, who those People are, for whose Sake the Protestant Schools

Schools in Ireland are founded. And are they not the miserable Descendants of the very ancient Inhabitants of that Kingdom, whose Possessions have been wasted by War, or transferred to the Conquerors, and who are become indolent by Despair, and unhappy by Ignorance? And let it be farther asked, to whom is Application made for their Support and Instruction? To those certainly of that Nation, in the first Place, who embrace the Protestant Religion; many of whom have gone from hence, and have, by the Favour of their Sovereigns, acquired large Settlements there: And, in the second Place, to the Subjects of this Nation in general, who cannot but be sensible of the various and great Advantages arising from its connection with that Kingdom. To England therefore, as a Nation, and to numberless Protestant Gentlemen of Ireland, are the very Circumstances of the Israelites in a great Degree applicable: And the Inference is, that if we believe our respective Situations, in that Kingdom and in this, not to be the Effects of blind Chance, but the Dispensations of Divine Providence, we ought upon this Account; amongst a Thousand others, “to fear the Lord, and to serve Him, in Sincerity, and in Truth.”

BUT, not to dwell longer upon the Parallel, let us rather assume the general Proposition, That the Goodness of God is a just and sure Ground of Duty to Him, and refer it to our own Hearts, whether there can

can be a more true and sincere Way of serving Him, than by endeavouring to acquire that Spirit of Benevolence, which is the Spirit of Christianity; and whether Christian Benevolence can be better exerted, by those who communicate with Protestant Churches, than by reaching out to others that Light, and that Truth, which they themselves have received, and freeing the Ignorant from the Errors and the Slavery wherewith they are oppressed. Blessings bestowed upon us by the Hand of God, can certainly be repaid but one Way, by the Communication of them to others. His Perfections are infinite and unchangeable, whether our demeanour be good or bad; and, “if thou sinnest, what dost thou against Him? or “if thy Transgressions be multiplied, what dost thou “unto Him? if thou be righteous what givest thou “Him? or what receiveth he of thine Hand?” But the Happiness of Man may and must depend, very precarious as it is, in great measure upon his fellow Creatures; “Thy Wickedness may hurt a Man as “thou art, and thy Righteousness may profit the “Son of Man.” We are led then to assist our Brethren by that best of Motives, and most obvious of all Considerations, Gratitude to God, who hath given good Things to us, and expects in return, that we should give good Things to those who stand in need of them. Nor is His Favour to us in any Instance more conspicuous than in this, that He hath removed from us the Yoke of Papal Tyranny, and shed upon us the pure Light of His Word, the Gospel of Peace and Love; Obedience to which must be his true and sincere Service, and the promoting of which in its genuine State must be our Duty to our untaught Brethren.

THE general Scope of the Gospel is, in regard to Mens Actions, the Revival of decayed Morality, the Improvement of it, and the placing it upon its true Basis; whilst in regard to Mens Faith, it lays down a plain and easy Plan, wherein we are taught upon what gracious Terms we may be assured of Salvation. Now surely Virtue hath in it nothing but what manifestly tends to the Peace and Happiness of the World. Were it universally practised, every Sword would be sheathed, and every Tear wiped away; and doubtless, the less Mankind in general deviate from it, the nearer to its Perfection is that universal Happiness, which our bountiful Creator hath ordained to be, in great Measure, the Result of our Actions. But then take in the Gospel Improvements of Virtue; see it no longer confined within the narrow Limits of Philosophical Conclusions; behold it captivating even the Passions of Men; consider how every moral Action is heightened and adorned by Christian Charity; and who will then deny its amazing Tendency to the true and substantial, and universal Good of Mankind? The Plan likewise, and Scheme of Salvation, laid down in the Beginning, carried on through a Series of Ages, and finally compleated by our Saviour, is totally founded in Goodness. No possible Cause can be assigned for Creation but Goodness, unbounded, communicative Goodness: And no sooner had the first of the human Race transgressed, and fallen from the Hope of that Life which had been promised conditionally, than the same Goodness determined their offended Creator to restore it to them and their Posterity; in consequence of which the sacred Writings hold forth to us an amazing Scheme of Benevolence to a lost and miserable People.

FROM the general Scope of the Gospel we might pass to many Particulars; a single one of which contains perhaps more good, real, practical Morality, than all the ancient Heathen Works taken together; it is that wherein St Paul urges the Practice of that Charity which he describes. "It suffereth long, and is kind; it is not puffed up; doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no Evil, rejoiceth not in Iniquity, but rejoiceth in the Truth; beareth all Things, believeth all Things, hopeth all Things, endureth all Things." The Exercise of this Virtue is likewise particularly insisted on, as being, first, a necessary Mark of true Christianity; and, secondly, the absolute Condition of every Man's Expectation of Pardon for his Sins. "By this (says our Saviour) shall all Men know that ye are my Disciples, if ye have Love one to another;" and He hath taught us in our Prayers to ask Forgiveness of our Trespases, "as we forgive

"them that trespass against us."

He has moreover left us an Example, that we should follow His Steps: In which Example, if any one can find a single Instance of Ill-will to Man, of Enmity to those about Him, or of Hatred even to his Enemies, we will then give up the Cause of Protestantism, and of Liberty of Conscience, to their Enemy the Church of Rome, nay of Religion itself to Libertines of all Professions. But as long as every Particular recorded of our blessed Saviour shall appear in a different Light, whilst we read and own, that every lesser Action of his Life partook of that Goodness, which alone induced Him to be upon Earth a Sacrifice, and in Heaven an Interceder for us, we shall not be able to reconcile the Fraud or Force of the one, any more than the Scorn and Pride of the other, with the meek Spirit of the Lamb that was slain.

AGREEABLY to their Master's Instruction and Example, and consistently with the Doctrine which He taught, did the Apostles proceed: And surely that Spirit of Goodness, which actuated the first Preachers of the Gospel, which carried it through all Opposition, and which even now is most discernible in this and other reformed Churches, must be most agreeable to its true Temper and Constitution.

AND now, let it be asked, whether this Spirit of the Gospel is not in the greatest Degree obstructed in its Progress, by that Church, which occasionally authorises Kings to be Tyrants, or Subjects to be Rebels? which excommunicates without Mercy; which assumes to its Head an infallible Authority, and whose Avarice and Ambition seem to be insatiable? What it hath done formerly, in Ireland especially, we think of with Horror. And until Protestantism shall have taken deeper Root in that Country, we may reasonably fear its future Attempts. To prevent that Danger is amongst the great Designs of erecting Protestant Schools, to the Establishment of which every Spiritual and every secular Motive conspires.

IMAGINE a Country abounding with every Convenience for Commerce, with Cattle innumerable of every useful Kind, with Lands yeilding to none in their Fertility, with Villages full of industrious Inhabitants, with Ports crowded with Vessels to carry off the Necessaries of Life to other Kingdoms, whilst enough, even for the Elegancies of it, shall be retained at home. Imagine too its People not insensible to the Blessings of good Government. And above all, imagine them free from gross Superstitions, and Papal Tyranny; enjoying that Share of Literature, every one in his Degree, which is suitable to his Station; under the Instruction of a sober, moderate, derate, and rational Church, opening to them the Bible, and teaching them the Mysteries of God in the Spirit of Meekness and Charity. And then, if this be not a Picture of Ireland, reflect, that it may be made so, and that in part by your Liberality. As “the Kingdom of Heaven is like to a Grain of Mustard-seed, which indeed is the least of all Seeds; but when it is grown, it is the greatest among Herbs, and becometh a Tree;” so consider ye this little Province of it (which divine Providence hath in some Measure entrusted to your Care) in the same Light. Give some Instruction, and much Labour to a few; they themselves will be charmed with the Effect, and the View of it in them will charm others. Example will add its Powers; and if a Thousand Difficulties be thrown in the Way, Perseverance will overcome them all. If we be sure that our Principle is right, we may hope very justly, that God will endue us with Abilities to rectify every mistaken Application of it in due Season. For indeed human Wisdom cannot always direct its own Powers with Certainty to their destined Ends.

Not to be weary of well-doing, not to be discouraged at some Failures, not to despair on account of a slower Progress in good Designs than our warm Imaginations may have promised, is therefore one apostolical Exhortation, of which I take leave to remind you; and another, of the same Authority, is, to bestow with Simplicity of Heart. Not foolishly, not rashly, or beyond the reasonable Bounds of your Ability; for Prudence doubtless is a great and important Virtue; and every Man justly claims his own Right to do Good in his own Way, comparing one Method with another, and choosing for himself. Only let us guard against over-much Refinement, against weak Prejudices, and unmanly Objections. For what is often called Prudence is very apt to collect so many particular Circumstances, such an Abundance of cautionary Considerations, and sometimes such a Variety of casuistical Reasonings, as to make it extremely difficult to find a Case of Charity which is not exceptionable.

As to the very benevolent and noble Plan now before us, all who hear, or probably may receive this Address, are satisfied of its Goodness, both in regard to this World and to the next; and of its Practicability there is already sufficient Experience, to form good Hopes of its producing great Effects, to the Glory of God, and to the Good of Mankind.

YET it may be objected (for it hath been objected) 1st, That there is in this Plan a Force upon the Will that is unjustifiable; and 2^{dly}, That the Probability of a Relapse to Popery makes this Attempt of a Protestant Education too precarious.

As

As to the First, an unjustifiable Force upon the Will, it may relate either to the Parents or to the Children.

IN regard to the former the Objection is not, and in regard to the latter it cannot be well grounded. For the SOCIETY, I apprehend, takes no Child under its Protection, except from a willing Parent; but receives with Joy, what is freely given, the Care of the Religion and Morals, and Industry of an Infant, that must otherwise be devoted to Ignorance and Laziness. Nay, the Consent of some Papists hath been so entirely free, and hath been carried so far, as that, whilst they would not suffer their Children to partake of the SOCIETY's Support, they have yet desired Permission for them to avail themselves of its Instructions. Now when their Masters and Mistresses have thus the Office of a Parent voluntarily made over to them, how are they to perform their Duty, but by instilling into their Minds those Principles in which they would educate their own Offspring, for the promoting of which they are intrusted with their Employments, and which are designed to make those under their Inspection useful Members of the Community, good Men and good Christians, happy here and hereafter? Children thus received and taught, are so far from having an undue Force upon their Wills, that they must certainly have a better Chance of judging for themselves some time or another, than

than they otherwise possibly could have. All Education must indeed bias the Judgment in some Degree; and it is designed to do so. God forbid that we should ever want that early Prejudice in favour of Virtue and Truth, and so be left to the Workings of Nature; against whose Corruptions we have need of every Kind of Assistance with which Providence hath furnished us!

But, 2^{dly}, it is said, that they will relapse. The Fathers and Mothers will not lose their Children for ever; and if they would, the Priests will not suffer it. The first are glad of a temporary Assistance, and the latter will not be afraid of a little early Instruction, the Effects whereof they may very easily subdue.

Of such Inclinations, and of such Attempts I will not doubt: yet allow the Objection its full Force in every Part of it, and the only Inference is this, that your benevolent Designs will meet with some Disappointments in common with all human Plans and Endeavours, whatsoever they may be, and how wisely soever they may be calculated and carried into Execution; whilst the Experience of thirty Years may teach us, of how little Weight this and every other Difficulty will be found when balanced against the Good already done, and which will receive daily Increase, through the Blessing of Divine Providence “ordaining Strength out of the Mouths of Babes and “ Sucklings,

“ Sucklings, and making the Excellence of its Name

O GOD! wonderful art Thou in thy Dispensations! Thou broughtest Light out of Darkness, and all Things out of nothing! Thou art able to bring Good out of Evil; the greatest Good out of the greatest Evil! who knoweth but that Thou art graciously disposed even towards us miserable Sinners, the Inhabitants of these Nations? Thou hast given us the Victory over our Enemies, and we beseech Thee to guide us to a right Use of it, and to make us endeavour to spread thy Truth, and the Purity of thy Gospel, over those Lands which Thou hast now bestowed upon us. But especially grant Success to these SOCIETIES, that the Increase of the Riches of this World, to be hoped for by the Return of Peace, may be made subservient to thy Glory. The Wickedness and Obstinacy of thy chosen People did not prevent Thee from committing thy Oracles unto them, and making them the Preservers of thy Name and thy Truth, until the Fulness of Time should come for the Appearance of thy beloved Son in the Flesh. Make us, O Lord, the Restorers of his Religion to its native Splendor and Simplicity; and make us the Instruments in thy Hand of the Salvation of Thousands and ten Thousands in the Generations to come.

ABSTRACT

HIS MAJESTY'S ROYAL CHARTER,

For Erecting and Promoting English Protestant Schools in IRELAND.

GEORGE the Second, by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c.—To all Persons to whom these Presents shall come.—Forasmuch as we have received Information by the Petition of the Lord Primate, Lord Chancellor, Archbishops, Noblemen, Bishops, Judges, Gentry, and Clergy of our Kingdom of Ireland, That in many Parts of the said Kingdom there are great Tracts of Land almost intirely inhabited by Papists, who are kept by their Clergy in great Ignorance of the true Religion, and bred up in great Disaffection to the Government: That the erecting of English Protestant Schools in those Places, is absolutely necessary for their Conversion; that the English Parish Schools already established are not sufficient for that Purpose; nor can the Residence of the Parochial Clergy only, fully answer that End.

To

An Abstract of the Charter.

To the Intent therefore that the Children of the Popish, and other poor Natives of the said Kingdom, may be instructed in the English Tongue, and the Principles of true Religion and Loyalty, and that so good a Design may the more effectually be carried on; The Lord Lieutenant, and some of the Chief Nobility, Gentry, and Clergy of the said Kingdom, are appointed Commissioners to execute the Purposes of this Charter, and have a Power to elect others in the Room of their deceased Members; and are constituted a Corporation or Body Politic, by the Name of The Incorporated SOCIETY in Dublin for promoting English Protestant Schools in Ireland: And are capable to receive and enjoy in Fee, and in Perpetuity, any Manors, Lands, Tenements, &c. the same not exceeding the Value of Two Thousand Pounds per Annum, and any Sum or Sums of Money, that shall be given them by any Person or Persons, Bodies Politic and Corporate, &c. to be applied for the Establishing and Supporting English Protestant Schools, in such Places of the Kingdom as they shall think proper.

The said Society is impowered to nominate and appoint Schoolmasters and School-mistresses, to be approved and licensed by the Archbishops and Bishops respectively, to continue during the Pleasure of the said Society; who are to be supported by the Society, and provided with all Things necessary for the Instruction of the poor Children in the Principles of the Protestant Religion, Reading, Writing and Arithmetic; as likewise with proper Books and all necessary Materials fit for teaching them Husbandry, Housewifery, Trades, Manufactures, &c. in order to bring them up to Virtue, Labour and Industry.

The Society is likewise impowered to nominate Persons to receive Subscriptions, Benefactions, &c. in any Part of his Majesty's Dominions, from all well-disposed Persons.—The Society may elect and admit Subscribers (being Protestants) to be Members, to assist in carrying on the Design aforesaid.

P R Q-

PROCEEDINGS of the INCORPORATED SOCIETY in Dublin for promoting English Protestant Schools in IRELAND, from the Opening of His late MAJESTY'S Royal Charter, February 6, 1733, to March 25, 1763.

THE Original Design of this Society is well known to have been principally formed by the late Right Reverend Dr Henry Maule, Lord Bishop of Dromore, afterwards of Meath; which being highly approved and encouraged by the then Lords Justices, and a great Number of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, of the Commons, the Clergy and principal Gentlemen of the Kingdom, His late Majesty, upon their humble Petition, was graciously pleased in 1733, through the favourable Interposition of His Grace the Duke of Dorset, Lord Lieutenant, to grant His Royal Charter of Incorporation for the Erecting and Supporting of Schools, wherein the Children of Papists and other poor Natives might be instructed in the English Tongue and the Principles of true Religion and Loyalty, and trained up to the Practice of Industry and Labour.

In Pursuance of which, Charter-Schools have from time to time been erected by the Society in several Parts of the Kingdom, under the immediate Direction of Local Committees of the principal Gentlemen and Clergy in the Neighbourhood of each, who inspect and examine into the Instruction and Employment of the Children, their Food and State of Health; the Sufficiency and Diligence of the Masters and Mistresses, and all other Particulars relative to the Oeconomy and Management of the School, and report the same to the Society; besides which, the Schools are frequently visited and inspected by the several Members of the Society as they have Opportunity.

The Society have the Satisfaction to observe that their Scheme of dividing the Childrens Time between the Learning necessary for their future State of Life, and such gentle Work as is suited to their present tender Age, hath been successfully adopted by many Charity-Schools in Dublin and other Places; whereby the Benefit of the Institution hath probably been extended far beyond the Expectation of those who at first most warmly promoted it. But there is one Part of their Discipline peculiar to the Society, the Necessity of which ariseth from the peculiar Circumstances of the Children whom they receive into their Care; which is, the transplanting of them into such Schools as are most remote from their Popish Relations. This is their standing and invariable Rule; and the the more effectually to secure its good Success, they do not fail to recommend to the several Local Committees, and strictly to enjoin the School-Masters, by all possible Means to guard against and prevent an Intercourse or Communication between the Children and any of the Priests, or other Popish Inhabitants, in the Neighbourhood of the Schools.

The great Assistances, whereby the Society have from time to time been enabled to carry this extensive Design into Execution, have been annually published, not only for the Information of the Public, but in Gratitude to the pious and charitable Benefactors.

His late Majesty was graciously pleased in the Year 1739, to honour the Society with his Royal Countenance by a Donation of One thousand Pounds, and an Annual Grant of the like Sum on the Establishment of this Kingdom. And His present Majesty has likewise been graciously pleased to continue to the Society the same Mark of His Royal Favour; which they humbly beg Leave, with the most respectful Duty, thankfully to acknowledge.

The Parliament of Ireland, with that laudable Zeal for the Advancement of the Protestant Religion and the Benefit of their Country, with which their Proceedings have ever been distinguished, have also been pleased to take the Society under their Protection, and to grant to their Use the Produce of a Tax on Hawkers and Pedlars, as well as several considerable Sums of Money, which have enabled the Society to encrease the Number of their Schools, and to erect Nurseries for the Reception of Children too young to be admitted into the Schools.

The Parliament have likewise given an additional and most honourable Testimony of their Confidence in the Society, by vesting in them the Estates granted by Richard late Earl of Ranelagh for the Endowment of Charity-Schools in the Towns of Athlone and Roscommon.

The Contributions of private Persons, both in Great Britain and Ireland, have also been very considerable; as may appear by the annual Account of Subscriptions and Donations received, and the Erection and Endowment of the several Schools. From the Commencement of the Society, to November 1762, the Sum of £37395 : 3 : 6 hath been remitted by the Corresponding Society in London; to whose zealous and most useful Endeavours for promoting this Charitable Institution, as well by communicating their Sentiments and Advice upon all Occasions, as by contributing and procuring Benefactions, the Society are too highly indebted, not to embrace with the greatest Pleasure, every Opportunity of professing their Obligations, and returning their most hearty Thanks.
